Three More DFDia Interior Designers Achieve NCIDQ Certification

PHOENIX – DFDia, the Phoenix-based interior architecture and design firm, announced today that three of its interior designers passed the National Council for Interior Design Qualification (NCIDQ) examination bringing the total number of staff members who hold accreditation to 12.

DFDia designers Karen Harris, Dina Naslund and Joshua Thompson received certification from NCIDQ, recognized nationally for its regulation of the interior design profession.

According to the NCIDQ Web site, the goal of the organization “is to protect the health, life safety and welfare of the public by establishing standards of competence in the practice of interior design.”

DFDia Principal and President of the Southwest Chapter of the International Interior Design Association, Molly Laurey, says the accreditation is a significant professional accomplishment.

“The NCIDQ examination is a difficult test of an interior designer’s knowledge of the standards of the profession,” she says. “Dina, Joshua and Karen, along with the nine other DFDia designers who hold certification are representative of the talent, drive and skill that have positioned our firm as the Valley’s best.”

Voted the #1 commercial interiors firm in the Valley by Ranking Arizona, DFDia boasts a staff of 25 fully qualified professionals specializing in the fields of interior design and architecture.
